E-Petitions

The collection, storage and use of personal information provided in the e-petitioning process in Victoria is governed by Standing Orders approved by the Legislative Assembly.

For a sponsoring petitioner, the Legislative Assembly requires that the person's full name and e-mail address is provided and it will be published on the website against the e-petition. Parliament has no control of who will use this email address or how it will be used. The personal details of people who join (or "sign") e-petitions will not be published on the website.

The Sessional Orders require people who join an e-petition to provide their name and Victorian residential address. Prior to tabling, access to this information is restricted to parliamentary officers for the purpose of administering the e-petition or operating the e-petition service.

Copies of all tabled petitions, both paper and e-petitions, can be provided on request to the Legislative Assembly Procedure Office. A tabled petition, including paper and e-petitions, will contain the name and full address of all people who have signed the petition.

Sponsoring petitioners may be contacted by Parliament to provide feedback on the e-petitions process.
